SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY AS A NORM OF LIFE
OF THE MODERN CITIZEN OF UKRAINE

The article highlights the role of social responsibility and its relationship to social policy in the context of the formation of the European-style social welfare state in Ukraine.

The development of business cooperation of Ukraine in conditions of the spread of international and cultural ties with foreign countries sometimes gives rise to problems of international character. These events, in turn, require correct legal registration.

Problems of formation of welfare states are considered in works of a lot of foreign and domestic scientists. However, a separate institution of the welfare state, namely social responsibility, remains unexplored and requires comprehensive and thorough analysis.

The purpose of this issue is the study of theoretical bases of understanding of the essence of social responsibility in the context of the formation of the European welfare state in Ukraine, research of the status and problems of distribution, and identification on this basis of priority areas of development.

Thus, the social responsibility of the state and its institutions lies in the development and implementation of internal and external socio-economic policy aimed at ensuring high and ever-increasing living standards, empowering human development, guarantees of social protection and productive employment, minimizing social risks. It is manifested in the development and implementation of national programs of economic, scientific, technical, social, domestic, environmental, cultural, and spiritual development with the greatest efficiency for the society.
