LEGISLATIVE AND LEGAL SUPPORT FOR THE VOCATIONAL TRAINING IN UKRAINE

For an individual member of the community, the role of education lies in the fact that its economic status (competitiveness in the labour market, etc.) as well as social status and degree of social mobility, primarily vertical, are derived from its level of education. Education prepares a person to a competent performance of professional tasks, appropriate place in the labour market, and provides training of qualified personnel for all sectors of society. It significantly affects the class structure of society – due to get education, people have an opportunity to boost their social status, and education creates conditions for blurring social barriers and increasing social mobility. This necessitates legislative and legal support of a process of formation of personnel potential of Ukraine.

The article analyses the legislative and legal framework for the preparation of competitive specialists in Ukraine. The features of the management of professional education system are defined. Some aspects of shortcomings in law and legal support of professional education in Ukraine are characterized.

Thus, professional education requires interaction between education, society, and production as an integrated system in the idea of continuous education. Public administration of training system is gradually transformed into the relationship between education authorities and educational institutions on professional training on a competitive basis with the relevant agreements for the provision of educational services. It, therefore, needs a creation of dynamic standards that will define the strategy and tactics of management of education at all levels of vocational training and viable mechanisms for the preparation of competitive professionals.
