

Kobzar O.F.

*Candidate of Juridical Sciences, Associate Professor,
Senior Instructor at Department of Criminal Procedure, Kharkiv National University of Internal Affairs*

INTERACTION AS A KIND OF SOCIAL ACTIVITIES IN THE FIGHT AGAINST CRIME

During the political, social and economic reforms, worsening crime situation in the country, the desire of criminal structures to integrate and consolidate in various areas of society, the bodies of internal affairs are set tasks on the development and implementation of effective measures for combating crime. Achieving these goals is related to the research and scientific knowledge of the laws by virtue of which appear negative trends in crime. Their solution in theoretical terms is important to address the problem of ensuring a gradual decline in its level and in practice – for conducting organizational and tactical measures to enhance combating crime, improve and adjust interaction of authorities that counteract them, improve the organization and enhance their performance by applying scientifically grounded efficient measures. Among these measures, an important place belongs to the improvement of operating units' interaction with other operational subdivisions of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Ukraine. In this connection, it is necessary to study the fundamentals of the interaction of subdivisions of DIA of Ukraine as a system of principles and methods of organization and construction of theoretical and practical activity that is based on the provisions and laws of general social practice.

The purpose of the article is to study the theoretical framework, nature, and content of general social interaction, distinguish in it necessary and sufficient elements and their subsequent detection and analysis in the investigated joint activities of operational units.

The interaction in the process of combating crime as a human activity is determined mainly by society's needs and objectives arising from them. This activity depends on the presence in the objective reality of factors contributing to its implementation, their content, nature, and dynamics, as well as effects that reduce their effectiveness. An important role in the interaction as one of the forms of combating crime belongs to value-orientation activities, i.e. social assessment of reality, as in the system of any outlook a significant place is taken by a certain understanding of values, value characteristic of phenomena of the surrounding sphere.

So, being closely related to the cognitive part of the activities for the cooperation in the process of combating crime, value-orientation activity is essential for the improvement by means of creating the right social orientation of its citizens.